BEST NEWSPAPER - 2008 Queensland Country Press Association Awards

About us

More people prefer to read The Westerner – and with good reason. The Westerner covers the community and lifestyle stories that matter to our readers.

Having developed a loyal readership over the last 15 years, in 2007 The Westerner blossomed into a stylish full-colour community and lifestyle newspaper.

In the same year we were rewarded with Most Improved Newspaper at the 2007 Queensland Country Press Awards – Queensland's only statewide awards for regional press – and in 2008 we won Best Newspaper.

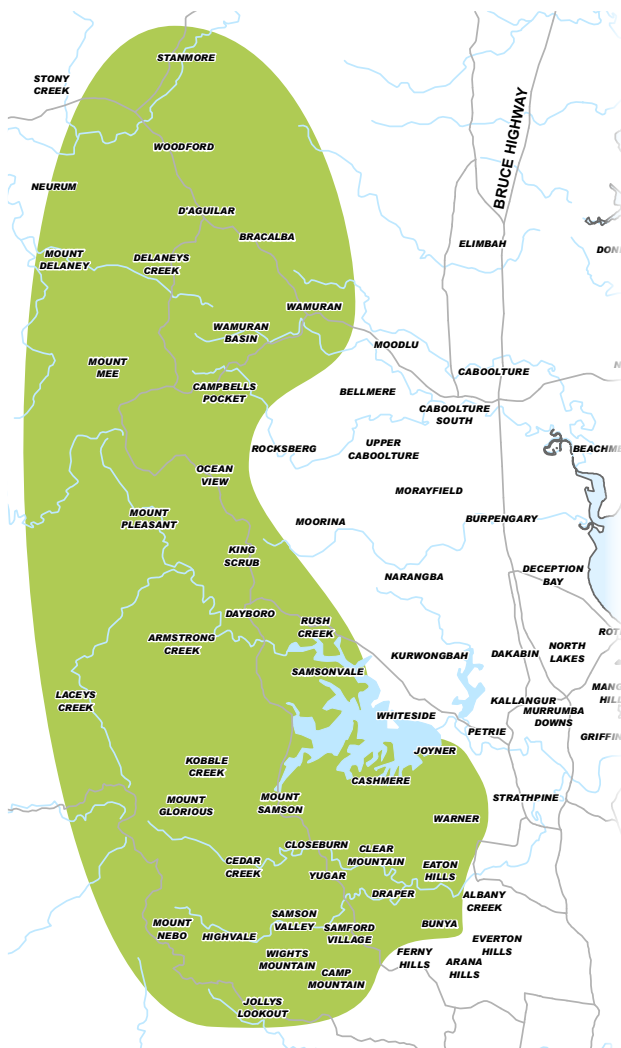

Our readers and advertisers know when they're on to a good thing!

Distribution

Every fortnight 15,550 copies of The Westerner are distributed throughout the western areas of the Moreton Bay region – from Woodford to Mt Nebo and to Warner.

And to make sure your marketing message gets into the hands of our readers, we take the time and care to deliver The Westerner directly to letterboxes.

This means that Westerner advertising has much greater reach. Your message isn't left on the footpath or at the corner shop – it's delivered directly into the hands of your next customer.

Our readers

Over 15 years The Westerner has built up a loyal readership of around 23,000 readers.

Stylish, full of colour, and easy to read, more people prefer to read The Westerner than the traditional news publications in the area.

Westerner readers, most of whom live on acreage and rural properties, also have some of the strongest buying power in the area.

Households in The Westerner's distribution area have an average annual income of around $80,000, and many have incomes over $100,000.

Our readers also want a publication that reflects the colour and life of north-west Brisbane – exactly what The Westerner delivers.
